FOREIGN MISSIONS.

At the Berlin Mission, Bonham Road on Thursday, inconcction with the universal week of proyer, the Rev. W. H. Hewett was the leader and spoke on the subject of foreign missions.

The speaker said the subject for which they met to pray that day was such a wide W one that the few remarks he had to make PARTNER in our Firm from this date. must be directed to one part of it alone, and that a very small part. The missionary propaganda was never so successful as was to-day, and never did the gospel spread | NOTICE. through the world at a quicker rate than its present progress, except perhaps in the Apostolic age. According to the most recent statistics, compiled by those who are authorities not on missionary work but on comparative religion; the adherents of Christianity exceed by about 80 millions the followers of Confucianism, Buddhism, Shintoism, and Taoism combined, and by 100 millions outnumber those of Mohammedanism and Hinduism together. Yet pared to accept approved European and they were not estisfied with the progress that was being made, and they had met to pray for that purpose. The greatest hindrance seems to bim to be not in the mission field but in lack of menna. The division of Christendom into so many Churches, the differences of Ecclesiastical outlook and working which have been the growth of years, he believed, were drags upon the rapidity of their progress. After all the greatest hindrance to the spread of the gospel was in Christendom itself. The ordinary Christian was not interested enough in their great work. They needed to pray for an outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon the Churches that the extension of the Kingdom might prosper The progress of Biblical criticism and of changes in our life, and people have not yet adjusted themselves to the new point of ylaw, and worked out the exect learnings on the missionary question. He did not

COTTLEH LETTER

(From Our Own Correspondent.) EDINEUROR, December 10. OPKNING OF THE CAMPAIGN.

An electoral campaign is very different from a military one. One cannot follow. the movements of the political armies and mark their positions, their advances and retreats, by means of little flags upon big maps. The candidates fight as in a fog; each sees little more than his opponent. There are noises and uproars, alarms and excursions, multitudes of contending voices it is asked, - How goes the battle ? all the answer that can be given with honesty is just to pick out some outstanding incidents, to sieve the rumours, and to try and give a general idea, a very general idea, -of the progress of the fight. To do more would simply be to reflect one's own wishes and hopes.

At the moment of writing, the beginning of the second week of December, the opposing forces have not yet come to close quarters. They are manoeuvring for position, and bringing up supplies and amenunition. In London and in some of the great centres in England, the excite ment is already at fever heat; but here in Scotland the natural phlegm asserts itself. and we are still in the stage of quiet though hard proparation. There is resson for the postponement of actual warfare: ways and means must be considered; the campaign promises to be the most costly one on record. The prophecy may be hazarded that the average outlay per candidate will be nearer the maximum allowed by law than at any election since 1886; and neither Unionists nor Radicals wish to run up a heavy bill in the preliminary weeks. The controllers of the party funds at the central office (and they do not haul in money with a millionaire's ease) are as keen as the individual can didates to conserve supplies until the critical days in January. When the contest really opens, however, it will be conducted with a finitioness such as few politicians have witnessed since the Home Rule election. From now until Christmas. we will have speeches, and more speeches and still more speeches; not until after IMPORT SPECIALITY :- Seeds suitable for that will canvassing be taken up in earnest; and then, except for a few days at the New. Year, the struggle will go on without pause. for a single, hour until the last vote is dropped into the ballot box.

What is called "electioneering literature" will play an unusually important part. Nothing at all comparable with the posters and printed matter have ever been dreamt of. And what though the humour is of exaggeration? Has not Lord Rosebery assured us that no election is ever conducted in a Palace of Truth?

DOWN WITH THE HOUSE OF LORDS. It is rarely possible in a General Elec-Partnership heretofore subsisting tion to extricate the major issues from subordinate questions of local interest; and on the business of Architects and Civil in Scotland, unfortunately, there are many little problems to complicate the decision NELL land PAGET, will, on the Slate of the electors. Attempting without prejudice to state the platforms of the two solved by mutual consent. All debts due great parties, I should say that, broadly speaking, the Unionists rest their case by whom the business will in future be upon a condemnation of the Budget; a contention that the Lurds did their duty in submitting the Budget provisions to the judgment of the country; and an affirmation that the revision of our fiscal system is the only cure for unemployment. Tariff Reform in put forward as a definite policy and a rallying ground. The Radicals, on the contrary, place their main reliance on an attack on the House of Lords; they deny that it had any right to interfere with the Budget proposals; and they resent being forced to appeal to the country. Their cry No. 28, appraised value $250.00 gold. It forced to appeal to the country. Their cry will be sold for each to the person or per- is simply "Down with the Lords!". fashion of late years ; it has a second place [ 47 in the affections of the people to the more brightly heed line rampant on the field of mid; but still it is oftener seen in Scotland than the red cross of St George in England. In Elinburgh, the principal event was the annual meeting of the Grand Lodge of Scottish Freemasonry, when Sir Charles Dalrymple, Bart., of Newtonhailes, installed the Marquis of Tullibardine, re-elected Grand Master. Colonel R. King Stewart of Murdiestoun was appointed Grand Master Depute, and Mr A. A. Spiers of Elderslie, Substitute Grand Master Among other office-bearers of Grand Lodge installed were Senior Grand Wardon, Colonel Lowis A. Hope, C.B., A.D.C.; Junior Grand Warden. Colonel R. G. Gordon Gilmour of Craigmillar, C.B., M.V.O., D.S.O., and Senior Grand Descon, Lord Elphinstone. It was stated that during last year Scottish Freemasonry had increased by 9738 new members, and that thirteen new charters had been issued, including three in India, and one each for Queensland, Rhodesia Syria, and Barbadoes. At the banques, Lord Tullibardine mentioned as curious fact that he should be the Grand Master to pull down Grand Lodge offices erected during his grandfather's occupancy of the chair; but the present head-quarters in Edinburgh were now far too small for the purposes of the Craft, and plans were being prepared | the 13th January, 1910, commencing at Paul Jordan, District Grand Master of Hongkong and South China, was, one of those who replied to the toast of "The Provincial Grand Lodges at Home, in India, and the Colonies." ( The Town Church of St Andrews was reopened on St. Andrew's Day; it has been almost wholly rebuilt, the only portion of the old edifice untouched being the west gable and several of the massive pillars. It was here that John Khox preached his first sermon, so momentous in the history of Scotland, and the south porch has been named after the great Reformer. The pulpit is a memorial to the Rev Dr Boyd. better known as "A.K. H.B.," the essayist. who was minister of the Church for nearly thirty-five years. The Scottish Festival in St Columba's. Pont Street, is now assuming something of the character of a national celebration for the Scottish population of London. It was held on the Sunday nearest to St. Andrew's Day. The congregation was a representative one; members of over thirty scottish Societies in London were present; and Lord Balfour of Burleigh assisted in the opening

There were numerous banquets in England, Ireland, and Wales, and some very Scottish speeches were delivered. At the Scottish Corporation in London, Rev. Dr. M'Adam, Moderator-Designate of the Church of Scotland, said that St Androw's Day represented the history of Scotland. It was a day when Scotsmen the world over met together to fan the flame of patriotism. What was the characteristic of St Andrew? Of him they read in the New Testament, "he first findeth his brother Simon." And on St Andrew's Day, therefore, Scotemen first tried to show their friendly influence and goodwill towards those who were their own brethren and were knit to them by so many ties. At Dublin, Sir Samuel Chisholm said that the first question put to himself by a Scotsman in a foreign land was. " Is there a brother Neot within reach ?" and when he had found him, the two consulted together, perhaps as to the building of a Presbyterian kirk, or the formation of a Burns Club, or the foundation of a St. Andrew's Society. t Cardiff, Professor Griffiths declared that the possession of a scottish accent was practically, at all events in business, as good as a testimonial.

HONGKONO, FRIDAY, JANUARY 7, 1910.

A PROBLEM OF MODERN CIVILL ZATION.

Incheasing attention is being directed in Europe to the continued fall in the birthrate of the great nations and the serious decline in the United Kingdom of the number of marriages, especially during the last decade. The new President of the Royal Statistical Society Sir J. A. Bauses, made it the principal topic of his recent inaugural address and some of the conclusions at which he arrived were, to say the least, very remarkable. The population of Western Europe in 1900, he said, was about 239,000,000, and the Toutonic element in this population rose in decade from 53 to 58 per cent. while the Latin fell from 44 to 40 per cent. Ireland alone having an actually decreasing population, the decrease being over 17 per cent. The general increas was just under 31 per cent. With regard to the proportion of the sexes, it is found that, whatever the cause, only lage that of better stocks. This is the less 30 years later. As fewer women view, and perhaps never will. It runs he improvement in bygiene tended to and contone, but to a deeply-rooted diminish the proportion of girls since it was the other sex which being more apt to succumb, profited by it most.

Norddeutscher Lloyd, Melchers & Co. General Agents, Hongkong & China OUR LONDON LETTER

(From Our Over Correspondent) London, December 11 Big sums have been taken during the las for days at the Paris spetime-rooms. Four rows of pearls were knocked down at succe. amounting to over a million france. Places of ancient tapestry have fetched 125,000 france, 225,000 france and 435,000 france respectively. A clock in part Louis XV sold for 34,000 france, a carpet for 35,000 francs. The old guillotine has been bought by a postage stamp saller for a little less than £40. He intends to show it all over France. If provincials are as anxious to see and touch the ghastly instrument as Parisians were during the two days it was to be seen at the Hôtel Drouot, its possensor may make a good thing out of it. It will perhaps be the first time a guillotine

Mr Ivan Chen, able secretary of the Chinese Legation, and joint honorary secretary of the China Society with Mr. Byion Brenan, gave the members of that successful organisation a treat on Thursday night at the Caxton Hall, when he addressed them on the subject of the patriarchal system in China. Sir Henry Howorth, who presided, confessed he had never been tu China but he had studied the Far East closely and further confessed that he had written a history of the Mongols. Mr. Chen began by stating that every government must have some underlying system as its base and in China the principle was that governing the family life, supported by the teachings of great teachers who exhorted children to be obedient and faithful to their parents. Into the extensive ramifications of the influence of family life and obedience in China the lecturer went: with deft touches of wit here and there to illumine his remarks.

Two Chinese proverbs quoted vastly amused the gathering. 1. One should only sweep the snow away that rests before his door; he must not trouble himself about the frost on his neighbour's house. 2. Dining Saloon. difficult to give a decision in a family Parental authority in education and matrimony were next traced. Mr Chen pointing out that the young couple wers ready to accept the decision of their parents as to whom they should marry. True, he added night. with a twinkle, this does away with courtship, but does not the western courtship often lead to a suit for breach of promise - The marriage coremony; though performed in the house and not of a civil or religious character, was nevertheless a most solemn step and was treated with as much reverence as if there were elaborate religious ceremonies attached to it. He did not know whether there was any connection between the British custom of tying an old. shoe to the carriage of a newly married couple and the Chinese habit of the bride wearing a pair of her father's old shoes in which to walk from her room to the sedan chair on her wadding morning. Anyway, an old bachelor or old maid in China was a

The principles underlying marriage in China without doubt helped to give the patriarchal system in China much of its power. The women, he contended, were not so cibined and confined as was sup-posed, yet he thought there might be reexations in the rigid discipline of women' and children in China when compared with the greater freedom of the West. Still under the old law in England the woman's position was inferior to man, but in China a woman could always hold property and if her husband started to play the fool with it her relatives could step in.

In China people were reluctant to wash their dirty linen in public and the prospect of it often had a salutary effect on the hushand who had been inclined to push things

After the lecture the Chairman compl mented Mr Chen on his command of English idioms. There was no community of people so generally docile and law abiding as the Chinese. Nothing like it had been seen: elsewhere and the patriarchal system was the chief influence in accounting for it. He wished Mr Chen could tell them what to do with those Western women who were making men's lives a burden by refusing to obey the law and even refusing to eat or drink when the whim seized them.

In the discussion that followed Mr King said though in Chinese life women did not mix freely with the rest of the community he recalled that when Mr Chen was in Shanghai not so long ago on holiday a dinner party of Chinese ladies and gentlemen was given in his honour. That was a great step forward indeed.
Replying to a vote of thanks, the Chairman recalled that when he was a member for one of the Salford divisions he was once invited by the Mayor of a Lancashire city to meet the Chinese Minister. The Mayor, thinking that the Chinese language consisted of words of one syllable, decided also to compose his speech of words of one syllable, out of respect for his guest.

His astonishment could be imagined when the Minister replied in best Johnsonian diction, employing words of five to

A JOURNALIST IN INDIA. P. OSTRATED BY NERVOUS DISEASES

FINDS NEW ENERGY AND VIGOUR IN THE NERVE-BUILDING PROPERTIES OF DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS. A S a journalist of great experience on A the Indian press the name of Mr. H. Rice (now of the Bombay Gazette) is , esteemed by all of his profession. One subject on which Mr. Rice speaks with full authority relates to the far-reaching HONGAY .and evil effect produced by a tropical climate upon those who are continually engaged in business. Mr. Rice mentions that he has found in Dr. William Pink disorders that so commonly afflict busy men in the Far East. He stated when interviewed at the Adelphi Hotel. Bombay: --"My journalistic work entails a great amount of worry and some time ago the continual strain so told upon my health that I was completely prostrated with Merrous Debility. My work was a burden; the 8th I could scarcely keep awake through the MACAO. day, and by the time evening came I was completely exhausted. All that time
